

EVALUATING AND GROWING DMM MINISTRY THROUGH COACHING SKILLS

TRAINER GUIDE

Notice to Participant

This manual is based on original material and concepts developed for the iGROW training workshop. Participants are granted permission to use the training resources, including the Practitioner Manual, the Trainer Guide, and PowerPoint presentations.

We would like this training to be spread widely. If you are interested in learning more about the program or intend to use these resources in full or in part, please contact us at the email below for details. In some cases, we'll may be able to offer you an iGROW training workshop in your area.

If you are a New Generations national partner, your successful completion of this workshop entitles you to use and make copies of any of these resources, as long as you make no changes or deletions of any kind. You may not repackage these resources without written authorization by New Generations.

For inquiries write to: jcorley@newgenerations.org

www.newgenerations.org

Learning Outcomes of this Training

At the end of this training, trainee coaches will:

- Understand the five elements of an iGROW coaching session.
- Experience coaching themselves, so that they'll be convinced of its benefits.
- Acquire elementary coaching skills that enable them to lead a coaching session.

Session Overview

Session 1 – What Coaching is – Jesus as Coach	5
Session 2 – Introduction to iGROW – INVITE	10
Session 3 – INVITE – Building Rapport and Engaged Listening	17
Session 4 – INVITE – Listening Skills; GOAL – Beginning with the End in Mind ...	23
Session 5 – GOAL – How to Increase Motivation	28
Session 6 – REALITY – Evaluating a Movement.....	36
Session 7 – REALITY – Looking from Different Angles	42
Session 8 – REALITY – Practice.....	44
Session 9 – OPTIONS – Considering Different Options	48
Session 10 – OPTIONS – Practice.....	54
Session 11 – OPTIONS – Assessing Available Resources	55
Session 12 – WILL DO – Taking Action	58
Session 13 – INVITE – Reviewing Previous Action	62
Session 14 – Practicing an iGROW Session	67
Session 15 – Practicing an iGROW Session	68
Session 16 – Wrap-Up.....	68

Notes for the Trainers

Read these notes as preparation for teaching the iGROW coaching sessions.

- Throughout the Trainer Guide there are trainer notes to support you in delivering the training. These notes appear in boxes and are intended to help you understand the teaching material. Do not read them out to the participants. Before teaching the session, make sure you are familiar with the different sections of the session e.g. where the trainer notes occur, what the teaching material is and the activities required.
- Activities and the teaching blocks have allotted times. It is important you stick to the allotted time for each session. Each complete session runs for 50 minutes.
- Questions in bold italics are questions the trainer asks participants as a group. Ask the question in bold and then wait for the answers from participants. Sometimes you will briefly discuss the answers as a whole group. Sometimes they are quick-fire answers to encourage the engagement of the participants.
- Recap – At the start of every session there is a two-minute recap. It is very important that you do not spend time here with extra questions or developing the points. The purpose is simply to refresh the minds of the participants and to embed the iGROW format with repetition.
- Insightful Questions – In every element of iGROW we have included a list of Insightful Questions to launch the coaching. There is no need to read out the full list of questions during the training session. They are included in the trainer guide and the coach manual, so it is only necessary to refer to the list and perhaps pick out one or two for discussion.
- Terminology – We use the term “coach” to describe the person who facilitates a conversation by asking insightful questions leading toward self-discovery. The term “catalyst” we use to denote the person who is coached, and on the receiving end of the coaching.

Icons throughout this Trainer Guide show the type of training involved.

Criteria for selecting future coaches for training:

The more potential coaches already exhibit the following qualities, the stronger their foundation will be. Desired characteristics include:

- Ability to make others feel safe
- Good listening skills
- Other-centered
- A mindset focused on growth
- Deep thinking and proven training skills

SESSION 1 – What Coaching is – Jesus as Coach

The Disease of Tellitis [5 minutes]

Trainer starts this session by telling the participants a story to set the scene of why coaching is so important.

I want to tell you of a man who suffered from a disease. It's called Tellitis. Have you heard of that disease before? There are several issues that led to his condition.

One issue was that he knew so much. Another problem is that he was so confident. He helped so many people find solutions, which made him confident to help just about anybody. Then he had strong analytical skills. He had the ability to analyze the most complex situation. So he would analyze situations wherever he went. When people told him something, he would analyze what they were saying. God gave him strong intuition and oftentimes, he would see something others hadn't caught and would have an intuitive insight into that situation. And lastly there was probably a bit of pride. Something in him sometimes thought he knew better than others.

All these issues lead to his disease – Tellitis. I wonder if any of you have any of these issues I have mentioned?

Let me describe this disease. When people share with us about their lives, about their ministry, we often want to tell them what we know. We want to tell them our analysis of the situation. We want to tell them what we see intuitively. We want to tell them what our solution to their problem is. This disease is actually a pandemic. I've seen many others infected by it, but especially in Christian ministry.

Rather than empowering those we lead to discover their own solutions, we often want to solve their problems for them based on our experiences. Rather than encouraging the people who know their context best to come up with the best solutions, we want to import our solutions that have worked elsewhere.

I don't know who of you might have any symptoms of Tellitis. 😊

Now, there is good news. There is a cure.

The man with Tellitis was invited to a training where he learned basic coaching skills over 8 weeks ~~a three-day session~~. He was amazed at the results when he began using those techniques with the people he worked with every day. Every day. No exception. He took the coaching manual he was given at the training to every meeting, to every conversation. And he focused on practicing the skills he learned. He found that the coaching helped to effectively prevent the dreaded Tellitis.

How about you – have you seen evidence of this disease?

With this coaching training we want to equip you to address this disease, and to become an effective coach yourself.

Activity: What coaching is [5 minutes]

We need to discover what coaching is. I am handing out some cards, which together form the definition of coaching. In order to find it out, those of you with cards need to work together get into the right order, so that your cards form the complete definition.

The trainer hands out cards with one word of the definition printed on each. Participants work together to form a line – each person holding up their card in the correct sentence order.

move self-discovery desired Prayerfully questions of insightful to towards a asking outcome.

The trainer reads out the definition once the cards are held up in the correct order.

Definition: Prayerfully asking insightful questions of self-discovery to move towards a desired outcome.

Training	Consulting	Mentoring	Coaching
An expert with knowledge and experience facilitates learning and skill development.	An expert provides advice, working with others to diagnose problems and recommend solutions.	An expert guides the development of character and competence by sharing from their experience.	A coach asks insightful questions towards self-discovery, to empower the coachee to move toward a desired outcome.

Telling versus coaching [8 minutes]

With this definition, let us compare telling and coaching.

Telling has some advantages.

What are the advantages of telling? Who would like to share?

What might be the advantages of coaching, in comparison to telling?

Trainers writes trainees' insights on board/flipchart. Any in the below table that the trainees don't come up with, the trainer adds in the end.

TELLING ADVANTAGES	COACHING ADVANTAGES
Expert's knowledge is given	xCreates responsibility
Saves time	Builds relationship
Builds confidence of the teller	Increases confidence of the catalyst
Could get the conversation started	xLasting learning from own discovery
	Builds resilience when problem solving
	Leads to answers we believe in xMotivates us to act on our ideas

What coaching is not [1 minute]

Not telling – this disempowers the catalyst.

Not counselling – coaching looks at the present and the future.

Not advice-giving or problem-solving – coaching asks questions, does not deliver answers

Not making comparisons with others – you are in a unique context which needs unique solutions and ideas.

Not consulting or mentoring – a coach does not give information or expert advice.

What coaching does [1 minute]

Raises awareness – "Wow! I never thought of it like that!"

Generates responsibility – "What can I do to change the situation?"

Facilitates change – "Step by step, I can create a new habit that brings a different outcome."

Affirms strengths – "I am good at this. Knowing this brings me energy."

Develops a growth mindset – "I am developing my skills." Rather than a fixed mindset which says, "I'm not good at this."

Focuses on the future – "I can see a vision of what I desire."

Jesus in coaching mode

Some of you may wonder: Is coaching Biblical? The word "coaching" does not even appear in the Bible, after all.

Group Discovery: [10 minutes]

Think together of instances in the life of Jesus where he asked people questions. Note the questions Jesus asks and whom he asks.

*Then answer together the discovery question: What does Jesus intend to achieve by asking this question?

You do not have to look up or note the reference. Try to find as many instances as you can.

You have 10 minutes.

THE QUESTION JESUS ASKS	WHOM JESUS ASKS	JESUS' INTENT
Who do you say that I am?	The twelve	Let them discover and articulate what Jesus' identity is. It matters what you think, not others.
Whose image and inscription are on a denarius?	Scribes and chief priests	Realize it is Caesar's, and Caesar thus is owed taxes.
What do you want me to do for you?	Two blind men	For us to understand what we really want.
Why do you call me "Lord, Lord" and do not do what I say?	The crowds	What we value most will show in our lives. This question reveals the heart values.
Do you love me?	Peter	Words are cheap. Actions count. How do you show love?
Why are you so afraid? Where is your faith?	The twelve	To reveal the source of their fear and point them to Jesus to overcome it.
Why do you call me good?	Rich young ruler	To begin to open their minds to Jesus' divinity.

Discovery Sharing with large group: [15 minutes]

How many instances have you found where Jesus asks questions?

You are invited to share with us what you have discovered. Just read the questions Jesus asked.

One group after the other shares the list of questions Jesus asked. Each new group only shares those questions the other groups have not yet shared.

After that, each group shares the intents of Jesus. Again, each new group only shares those questions the other groups have not yet shared.

Insights on Jesus as coach [5 mins]

The trainer announces the results how many examples of Jesus asking questions each group found: Group A discovered X instances, Group B discovered Y instances.

Who would like to take a guess how many times in his ministry Jesus asks questions?

The Gospels record Jesus asking 307 questions.

By comparison, each of the four Synoptic Gospels records five sermons only.

The Gospels also record Jesus being asked 183 questions.

Of these 183 questions, guess how many Jesus answers?

Jesus answers only three of the many questions he is asked!

Jesus does not want to give people all the answers. Instead, he guides people toward self-discovery.

Jesus asked coaching questions extensively.

Jesus asked people questions more often than he gave them answers.

Jesus asked questions directing people toward self-discovery way more than He preached at them.

Asking coaching questions was central to Jesus' ministry practice. Jesus was a Master Coach.

In this training you will follow in his footsteps.

SESSION 2 – Introduction to iGROW - INVITE

Introduction to iGROW Coaching [25 mins]

An iGROW coaching session consists of five elements:

- (1) INVITE – greet, invite God in prayer, update, build rapport.
- (2) GOAL – coach leads the catalyst to determine a desired result.
- (3) REALITY – the catalyst views the current situation in relation to that GOAL.
- (4) OPTIONS – explore a range of possibilities of what could happen going forward.
- (5) WILL DO – the catalyst commits to specific steps to move closer to the goal.

A Story from Dee Emmem Land

In a land far away called Dee Emmem (DMM) there was a sojourner who was on a journey with God. His name was Catalyst. While he felt confident that his overall journey was heading in the right direction, he had a nagging concern he was missing something important that was slowing his progress.

On his path he met a fellow sojourner by the name of Coach. They shook hands, and Coach welcomed Catalyst, saying warmly "Hello! How are you?" Coach was very INVITING. After they built a comfortable rapport, Coach suggested: "Let us INVITE God and ask for direction." Together they prayed. Then Coach asked Catalyst: "What do you want to see happen? Where do you want to go?"

Catalyst responded eagerly, "My desired GOAL is that I want to journey to Quality Town."

Coach nodded. "Okay, that's very clear and doable. Let us walk together up that hill so we can view the REALITY of this terrain together."

Arriving atop the hill, Coach asked: "Let us first view where you have been coming from, and what you have been doing recently on your journey. Let us view the current REALITY of your surroundings." They discussed that for quite a while, with Coach listening and asking questions that helped Catalyst discover and take a fresh look at his journey so far.

When Coach sensed that Catalyst had gained full awareness of the current situation, he asked him: "What could you do to reach Quality Town?" Then they talked some more, reflecting on the various OPTIONS available. Catalyst could take the small trail that led directly toward Quality Town, but was rocky and perilous. Another OPTION was for him follow the stream in the valley toward Quality Town, but there was no clear trail to follow. Yet another OPTION was to head straight toward the tallest mountain until Quality Town came into clear sight, but that was much more difficult climbing. Together, they explored several potential OPTIONS for Catalyst to get to Quality Town.

Catalyst finally determined, "I will head straight toward the tallest mountain."

"Great," Coach said, affirming Catalyst's choice. "Then what WILL you DO next? What are your next steps?" By asking a few questions, Coach helped Catalyst determine the best choices to make progress on his journey.

Finally, Catalyst committed to the next steps he was ready to take. "I WILL DO the following," he exclaimed, beaming with confidence.

"Praise God!" exclaimed Coach. You can INVITE me to meet again when you are on the foothills of the mountain, which probably will be in four weeks. Meanwhile, when I can support you in any way, just call or message me, and I am happy to support you. God be with you on your journey to Quality Town!"

The following explanation of each element of iGROW is meant to be moved through quickly. It gives a brief overview of each element. Then each element is unpacked in much more detail spread out over the sessions.

INVITE in iGROW – Hello, how are you?

- 1) Action – Handshake. [Trainer asks people to shake someone's hand.]
- 2) What – This element ensures good rapport between the coach and the catalyst. All the following work rests on the rapport and trust between them.
- 3) Why – The coach builds rapport to create a free and supportive atmosphere. The catalyst must feel encouraged, understood and listened to in order for the best progress to be made.
- 4) Cupboard illustration

I'm going to give you an example of what you do in each element that underlines the purpose and importance of the that element.

Imagine that I have an overflowing cupboard in my home. It is packed with household items, with no organization. Anything and everything is pushed into the cupboard and every time I open the door things just fall out. I wish it was tidy but I never have the time to sort it out. I'm not very good at tidying anyway. I need help.

The purpose of the INVITE element in this scenario is that I approach a coach to say "I need help. I can't live with this chaos anymore! I like you and I hear you are a good coach. Please coach me towards a tidy cupboard." And the coach says "Yes, I will listen to you and support you in your aim. Let's have a chat about it."

5) Key activity – The coach connects with the catalyst and builds rapport.

6) How do we fulfil the purpose of the element?

You both feel you have built rapport.

GOAL in iGROW – What you want to see happen

1) Action – Pointing the way forward. [Trainer demonstrates and participants copy: Lift both hands flat, left and right to your ears, and then point with both flat hands to a distant goal in front of you, stretching your arms out forward.]

2) What – Begin the coaching session with the end in mind. You set the target and then you work on how to get there. This element determines the GOAL – what you really want and why.

3) Why – Unless the conversation has an end in mind, it won't lead anywhere. If you do not set your mind to what you want, you won't get there. Defining a GOAL and then being coached towards it radically increases your rate of success.

4) Cupboard illustration

The purpose of the GOAL element is to be focused on what you want to have. I want to have a tidy cupboard where I can clearly see the items, know where everything is and have a feeling of calm when I approach the cupboard. This is not the time to think about how you get there. It is setting your course, fixing your gaze, and determining your target – a tidy cupboard.

5) Key activity – The coach helps the catalyst narrow down a session goal.

6) How do we fulfill the purpose of the element?

The catalyst has determined a specific GOAL for the session.

REALITY in iGROW – What you are doing and what you have done

1) Action – Glasses. [Trainer does and participants copy. You use your index fingers and thumbs to make a circle, move them to your eyes, as though you were wearing glasses, and look carefully.]

2) What – This element of the coaching session views the REALITY of what is currently happening, what needs to happen and assesses strengths, and any obstacles to overcome.

3) Why – The purpose of taking a full view of your REALITY is to not miss any opportunities to reflect and then grow towards your desired GOAL. This is where the work is done to really understand where you are in relation to the desired GOAL so that you increase your awareness of what needs to be done.

4) Cupboard illustration

The purpose of the REALITY element is to understand where you currently are in relation to the desired GOAL.

My cupboard is too small for the number of items in it. I think I may have to get rid of some items that I don't use. I never have time to start work on the cupboard. I was able to sort through my wardrobe on a previous occasion once I set my mind to do it, and felt good about giving some old clothes to other people.

5) Key activity – The coach listens and asks questions to facilitate the catalyst's self-discovery.

6) How do we fulfill the purpose of the element?

The catalyst has gained more awareness of the situation.

OPTIONS in iGROW – What you could do

1) Action – Looking around left and right. [Trainer does and participants copy. Place your right hand above your eyes, as if shielding from the sun, looking at a distant object, looking to the left, then to the right, exploring the scene.]

2) What – This element explores a large range of possibilities that could launch you towards your desired GOAL as you consider what first step you may take. This is a brainstorming time.

3) Why – The better the catalyst has understood the terrain of their strengths, weaknesses and opportunities, then the better they are prepared to understand the gap between the now and the not yet. In OPTIONS the catalyst keeps an open mind to what possibilities are available to them.

4) Cupboard illustration

The purpose of the OPTIONS element is to generate many ideas as to how to tackle the cupboard.

I could write a list of all the items, I could watch a YouTube video on tidying cupboards, I could ask for help from a cupboard-tidying expert, I could pay my children to do it, I could look through and decide what items I do not need any more or I could take one item out every time I go to the cupboard and put it in a more permanent place.

5) Key activity – Both engage in reflective dialogue to explore ways forward.

6) How do we fulfill the purpose of the element?

The catalyst has identified several potential ways forward.

WILL DO in iGROW – What you commit to do

1) Action – Steps. [Trainer does and participants copy. You take steps on the spot where you are standing, without moving forward. You move your lower arms up and down, as though you were marching.]

2) What – The final element of the session is when the catalyst determines what action steps they will take in order to move closer to their desired GOAL. From the possibilities developed in OPTIONS, the catalyst chooses the most compelling steps forward in his I WILL statement.

3) Why – Even the smallest step increases the energy and motivation of the catalyst. Change will occur with small, manageable forward movement.

4) Cupboard illustration

The purpose of the WILL DO element is to commit to one or two of the ideas generated in the OPTIONS element and set an action plan.

I commit to taking all the items out and putting the ones I don't need any more in one pile. That's step one. I feel motivated to do that. I can do this on Saturday after 5 p.m.

5) Key activity – Help catalyst commit to next steps through understanding the best choices.

6) How do we fulfill the purpose of the element?

Catalyst has committed to specific, time-bound, manageable actions.

Now let's take a moment to look in more detail at the first element of our plan – INVITE.

INVITE – Hello, how are you?

Introduction [5 mins]

1) Action – Handshake. [Trainer asks people to shake someone's hand.]

2) What – This element ensures good rapport between the coach and the catalyst. All the following work rests on the rapport and trust between them.

3) Why – The coach builds rapport to create a free and supportive atmosphere. The catalyst must feel encouraged, understood and listened to in order for the best progress to be made.

4) Cupboard Illustration

Remember the example of the cupboard.

I have an overflowing cupboard in my home. I wish it was tidy, but I never have the time to sort it out. I'm not very good at tidying anyway.

The purpose of the INVITE element in this scenario is that I approach a coach to say "I need help. I can't live with this chaos anymore! I like you and I hear you are a good coach. Please coach me towards a tidy cupboard." And the coach says "Yes, I will listen to you and support you in your aim. Let's have a chat about it."

5) Key activity – The coach connects with the catalyst and builds rapport.

6) How do we fulfil the purpose of the element?

You both feel you have built rapport.

Activity: [2 minutes]

Trainer asks everybody to slouch in their chair, head down, look down, arms by your side, grit your teeth. Now say in a quiet voice "I am an overcomer."

Now everybody on your feet. Stand tall. Head up. Smile! Chest out. Arms out. Now shout "I am an overcomer!"

What is the difference?

Possible right answers:

- Our physical posture affects us
- Our tone of voice impacts the message
- The volume of our voice impacts the message
- I believe it only the second time when I'm standing and saying it with conviction

Insightful Questions to launch INVITE

Each element of an iGROW coaching session contains insightful questions which you will use in your own coaching meetings. Here are the ones for INVITE.

What are a few reasons for you to be thankful?

What is big in your life at the moment?

What have you been learning recently?

Practice: [10 minutes]

In pairs, practice the first element of a coaching conversation – the element INVITE.

One of you chooses one of the questions to start the INVITE element of a coaching conversation, and then the other shares for 3-4 minutes about this question.

After the other person has shared, he gives feedback to the first on: How well did you feel the other person engaged and connected with you? What else could the other person do that would help you feel connected with him?

Then you take turns. The second person shares, and the other listens. Then the second person gives feedback.

If there is time left – Q&A

- What questions do you have?
- What would you like to understand deeper?
- What would you like me to explain again?

SESSION 3 – INVITE – Building Rapport & Engaged Listening

Recap [2 minutes]

Let us recall the five elements of iGROW . Let's do their actions together.

[Trainer leads by doing the actions]

INVITE [Handshake]

GOAL [Point with outstretched arms to a distant goal in front of you]

REALITY [Fingers making circles around your eyes like glasses]

OPTIONS [Place your right hand above your eyes, looking to the left, then to the right, exploring the scene]

WILL DO [Marching on the spot]

INVITE GOD – Let us invite God and ask for direction! [2 minutes]

What – Both coach and catalyst pray, centering on God and asking Him for direction, in a posture of dependence on Him.

Why – We are God-directed, depend on His direction, and turn to Him for guidance in our coaching conversation.

The purpose of the INVITE GOD element in this scenario is that together we approach God and say "I need help. I can't live with this chaos anymore! I need you and I want to follow your direction. Please give me insight how to tidy up this cupboard."

Key activity – Praying, centering on God and asking Him for direction.

Building rapport

What is rapport? [6 minutes]

Rapport is the ability to put someone at ease by creating a connection that is positive and feels safe.

Rapport is not just the coach being friendly and energetic. There is mutual respect between coach and catalyst, and confidence in each other's ability to play their part in moving towards the desired GOAL.

Illustration: 30-second sketch

[The trainer chooses someone, asks them onto the stage, shakes their hand warmly, tells them how happy he is to see them. Then he asks them a question related to a previous shared experience and follows up with the question for deeper connection. During the entire time he maintains eye contact, positive body language, and smiles.]

What did you see, how did I build rapport?

The trainer collects all answers from participants. At end he shares from the following list if there are any the participants missed.

How do you build rapport through your physical expression? [2 minutes]

- Set a positive tone
- Calm yet energetic
- Gestures and facial expression
- Eye contact and smile
- Alert body posture – physical posture is essential to altering our emotional state.
- Verbal reflection – use the words that the catalyst uses to show you are listening well
- Show genuine concern for their well being
- Show respect for the catalyst

Rapport – How do you build it? [2 minutes]

Building rapport as a coach has an inner and an outer practice. The inner world of the coach is your mindset and mood as you enter the conversation; the thoughts and feelings within you that you bring to the conversation. The outer world is how you connect and communicate with the other person.

Preparing your inner world

- The first step to build rapport is to be aware of your inner world.
- Be calm yet feel the energy of being fully present.
- Alert body posture.
- Eye contact and smile.
- Gestures and facial expression show openness, engagement and support.
- Set a positive tone.

Practice: [4 minutes]

Take three minutes now to ask yourself about your inner world –

- What am I feeling right now?
- What do I want to lay down? (a burden or negative thought)
- What can I be grateful for today?
- What are my two positive words for this coaching session? (for example: calm and alert)

Preparing your inner self clears the way to bring the best version of yourself to the conversation.

Connecting with the outer world [2 minutes]

How do we build rapport and connection?

- Establish clear agreements and demonstrate integrity (especially punctuality and keeping your word).
- Show genuine concern for their well-being.
- Show respect for the catalyst's perceptions and learning style.
- Physical reflection – If the person is excited, a good coach mirrors the positive energy. If the person is sad or serious, the coach will be calm and steady in their movements and tone.

- Verbal reflection – Use the words that the catalyst uses to show you are listening well.

Preparing our inner world and connecting with the outer world brings us in the right posture for building rapport.

The main two activities of building rapport are mirroring and engaged listening.

Mirroring [10 minutes]

Your key activity to connect is through mirroring.

You mirror the catalyst sitting across from you:

- Their body posture and gestures
- Their facial expressions
- Their tone of voice
- The key words and phrases they use
- The images they use to describe their world

They feel understood and accepted. By adopting their pace and tone and gestures you show them your support and alert presence.

Practice: Mirroring

Person 1 practices building rapport focusing on mirroring. Person 1 asks these questions to Person 2:

- What gives you joy at this moment in ministry?
- What is the overall vision you desire to become reality?
- What priorities do you see in your ministry in the next three months?

After four minutes, swap roles and Person 2 asks the questions and practices mirroring. Person 2 has four minutes as well.

Engaged Listening [10 minutes]

"You're not listening to me!" How many of us have had that accusation directed at us? How is that decided by a conversation partner?

Q: What do you think demonstrates poor listening?

[Answer: Lack of attention. Doing something else. Lack of eye contact. Saying hmhmm. Being unable to summarize.]

Therefore, the opposite is true for engaged listening.

Engaged listening is directed at the other person with the purpose of understanding what is being said.

Engaged listening involves noticing not only the spoken words, but also the tone, the body language, meaning and emotion.

Q: What might give away that a person's words are not telling the complete story? [Answer: If the words don't match the expression or body language of the person]

Notice what is not being said. For example, a long story is being told of a series of problems. The person does not talk about their own responsibility within the scenario, but blames others or circumstances. A good coach gently asks what the person can choose to do.

Check that you have really heard what the catalyst is saying by summarizing. "So you are saying that you feel tired, is that right?" This helps clarify that the coach recognizes what is being said, and gives an opportunity for the coach to make the catalyst feel understood.

Q: Who would like to have a go at summarizing what I have just said about summarizing?

Use the catalyst's words – if the catalyst says, "I feel excited and brave when I think about the opportunity," the coach says, "What do you want to do when you feel brave and excited?"

Q: What are the dangers you must be aware of when noticing what is NOT being said? [Answer: Making a wrong assumption. Never assume you understand the meaning of something unless you ask directly.]

Be comfortable with silence and interpret it well. Sometimes the silence is when the catalyst is processing a thought or considering some options. Give them the space. This can be where the magic happens – do not be tempted to rush them.

At other times, the silence is because the catalyst is stuck, or confused or slipping down a mental slope of negativity. As an engaged listener, you will tell what type of silence it is. You can ask a question to clarify. "Would you like me to rephrase the question?" or "Tell me what you are thinking about."

In order to achieve engaged listening, the coaching session will have approximately 40 mins of the catalyst talking and 20 mins of the coach talking. That's twice as much time listening as talking for the coach.

What are your questions?

Practice: Empowering Questions [10 mins]

Use some of the following questions to practice engaged listening through questions that build a positive atmosphere and empower the other. By empowering we mean, a state of "I can do this!" Practice in pairs.

- What have you loved about the last six months?
- What have you achieved or accomplished in the last six months?
- What have you done that you would like to do again?
- What are some of the empowering decisions that you have made in the last six months?
- What is one thing that you have achieved that you found extremely difficult at the time?
- How do you feel now, having thought about these empowering areas?

If there is time left: question and answer

- What questions do you have?
- What would you like to understand deeper?
- What would you like me to explain again?
- Where during the practice were you not entirely confident what to do? Where would you benefit from more explanation or more practice?

SESSION 4 – INVITE – Listening Skills; GOAL – Beginning with the end in mind

Recap [5 minutes]

Let us recall the five elements of iGROW . Let's do their actions together.

[Trainer leads by doing the actions]

INVITE [Handshake]

GOAL [Point with outstretched arms to a distant goal in front of you]

REALITY [Fingers making circles around your eyes like glasses]

OPTIONS [Place your right hand above your eyes, looking to the left, then to the right, exploring the scene]

WILL DO [Marching on the spot]

First element INVITE

- What is the purpose of INVITE? [Answer: to build a good atmosphere and connect with God]
- What is the key activity of INVITE? [Answer: the coach connects with the catalyst and builds rapport, and both connect with God through prayer.]
- How do you know you have fulfilled the purpose of INVITE? [Answer: both coach and catalyst feel good rapport and connected with God]
- What does it mean to build rapport? [Answer: to build rapport, we prepare our inner world and we connect with the outer world.]
- What indications are you looking for as evidence that rapport is built?

Possible answers:

- Catalyst is relaxed
- Body language is relaxed
- Smiling
- Says they appreciate your questions
- Says, "Oh, that's a good question"
- Share very personal thoughts and feelings with you
- Catalyst expresses they feel understood or positive about the experience

Barriers to engaged listening [3 minutes]

Barrier 1: You might recognize the situation and then start to employ your own problem-solving skills and either tell the catalyst what they could do or ask leading questions. A leading question has the answer in mind rather than being open. "Have you thought about...?" "Would you consider...?"

Barrier 2: You might remember your own experience – this may have the effect of clouding your questioning with the emotions you felt when going through a similar experience. Remember that coaching requires the catalyst to find the solution and that everyone has a different experience, even if there are similarities.

Barrier 3: You might get distracted thinking about what to say next – you need to remain focused on exactly what the catalyst is saying, rather than making sure you say something that sounds insightful. Chances are it won't be if you haven't listened well.

Barrier 4: Your own internal dialogue must be switched off – this may include how you think you are coming across, other jobs that must be done, or the argument you had that morning with someone else. All needs to be quietened down to bring focus to your catalyst.

Self-reflection: My listening skills [10 minutes]

In pairs, complete these reflection statements, one by one, taking turns.

- If I had to choose between speaking and listening, I would choose
- When I listen to someone, I tend to
- I find it easy to listen to people when
- I tend to interrupt people when
- When people are expressing their emotions, I feel
- People I tend to find it difficult to listen to include
- I become easily distracted when I am listening if
- The best listener I know is ... because s/he does ... well.
- I know I actively listen when
- To become a more engaged listener, I need to
- These are the action steps I will take to improve my listening skills:
 - 1)
 - 2)
 - 3)

GOAL – What you want to see happen

Introduction [5 minutes]

1) Action – Pointing the way forward. [Trainer does and participants copy: Lift both hands flat, left and right to your ears, and then point with both flat hands to a distant goal in front of you, stretching your arms out forward.]

2) What – Begin the coaching session with the end in mind. You set the target and then you work on how to get there. This element determines the GOAL- what you really want and why.

3) Why – Unless the conversation has an end in mind, it isn't coaching. If you do not set your mind to what you want, you won't get there. Defining a GOAL and then being coached towards it radically increases your rate of success.

4) Cupboard illustration

The purpose of the GOAL element is to be focused on what you want to have.

I want to have a tidy cupboard where I can clearly see the items, know where everything is and have a feeling of calm when I approach the cupboard. This is not the time to think about how you get there. It is setting your course, fixing your gaze, deciding your target – a tidy cupboard.

5) Key activity – the coach helps the catalyst narrow down a session GOAL.

6) How do we fulfill the purpose of this element?

The catalyst has determined an achievable, specific GOAL for the session that both the coach and the catalyst know

Beginning with the end in mind [5 minutes]

Finish line. Imagine a race. The athletes are lined up ready to run. One fixes their eyes on the finish line. One is looking at the trophy. One is gazing at the crowd. One is facing away from the finish line. One is asking another athlete where the finish line is. And one is unaware that there is a finish line.

Q: Which athlete is best-prepared to reach the finish line first?

Your GOAL is the key to the action you take. If you want it and know why you want it, then it is within your reach. If you don't know what you want, then you will continue going around in circles aimlessly, growing increasingly frustrated, and not achieving any sort of positive results.

Beginning with the end in mind puts the GOAL ahead of the problem. Instead of giving your attention to why you think you can't achieve something, set the desired outcome first and you concentrate on your growth not the problem.

Imagine that I want to cross from this field to that field but there is a river in the way. If I focus on the fact that I cannot swim and think that is the only way to cross the river, then I am setting myself up for failure before I take even the first step.

What could I do?

Learn to swim. Build a bridge. Walk along the river to see if it is narrower (I could jump across) or shallower (I could wade across), or see if there is a bridge further down.

How would you or others benefit from this GOAL? Concentrating on the goal at the beginning of the coaching session will increase your motivation to get there, as you identify the benefits of your desired outcome. If we fill our minds with the benefits, we will feel motivated and positive. This will give us positive energy to approach the possible reasons why we are not there yet.

Focus on what you want, not on what you don't want. If you keep telling yourself what you don't want, your brain will focus on that rather than the solution. By repeating to yourself what you want to achieve, your brain begins to subconsciously prepare for this scenario.

Insightful Questions to launch GOAL [3 minutes]

When discussing the desired GOAL of the coaching session, the following questions will lead the catalyst to describe what they want to see happen.

You may choose the one question from the following you sense is most appropriate to begin the GOAL element.

The catalyst may be able to state the desired GOAL of the coaching conversation after one question. If not, you can ask more of these questions.

Note that they are listed in order from general to specific.

- What would you like to work on today?
- What would make our time together valuable to you?
- What would you like to take away from this conversation?
- What would you like to evaluate today?
- What do you hope to accomplish by the end of our time together?
- What are the benefits to seeing this happen?

- How would you state in one sentence what you want to see happen?

85% success rate if coaches help to focus on one goal, success rates drop drastically to 35% if 2 goals are discussed, & even further to 10% success rate if more than 2

Roleplay: [5 minutes]

The trainer demonstrates the GOAL element with one trainee. The trainer instructs the trainee (best before the session!) to pick a ministry issue that is small and bears as little complexity as possible. For example: Desirable GOAL of the coaching conversation is to know what one main topic to select for the next team meeting. The trainer then walks the trainee through the GOAL element. He starts with the question: "What would you like to take away from our coaching conversation today?" The trainer may ask the trainee some of the other Insightful Questions above to help them formulate a very specific GOAL.

Practice Part 1: [10 minutes]

In pairs, practice the second element of the coaching conversation – the element GOAL. Use the movement with which you are most familiar for this exercise.

One person takes on the role of the coach and walks the other through the Insightful Questions to determine the GOAL of the coaching session.

Bear in mind the limited time.

SESSION 5 – GOAL – How to increase motivation

A Story from Dee Emmem Land [7 minutes]

The trainer invites the entire group of trainees to tell the story together again. He encourages one participant to start off and re-tell what they remember. Whenever someone gets stuck, the trainer asks: Who can continue here to tell the story? Should no one among the trainees continue, the trainer fills the gaps. Should anyone tell aspects of the story incorrectly, the trainer gently corrects.

In a land far away called Dee Emmem (DMM) there was a sojourner who was on a journey with God. His name was Catalyst. While he felt confident that his overall journey was heading in the right direction, he had a nagging concern he was missing something important that was slowing his progress.

On his path he met a fellow sojourner by the name of Coach. They shook hands, and Coach welcomed Catalyst, saying warmly "Hello! How are you?" Coach was very INVITING. After they built a comfortable rapport, Coach suggested: "Let us INVITE God and ask for direction." Together they prayed. Then Coach asked Catalyst: "What do you want to see happen? Where do you want to go?"

Catalyst responded eagerly, "My desired GOAL is that I want to journey to Quality Town."

Coach nodded. "Okay, that's very clear and doable. Let us walk together up that hill so we can view the REALITY of this terrain together."

Arriving atop the hill, Coach asked: "Let us first view where you have been coming from, and what you have been doing recently on your journey. Let us view the current REALITY of your surroundings." They discussed that for quite a while, with Coach listening and asking questions that helped Catalyst discover and take a fresh look at his journey so far.

When Coach sensed that Catalyst had gained full awareness of the current situation, he asked him: "What could you do to reach Quality Town?" Then they talked some more, reflecting on the various OPTIONS available. Catalyst could take the small trail that led directly toward Quality Town, but was rocky and perilous. Another OPTION was for him follow the stream in the valley toward Quality Town, but there was no clear trail to follow. Yet another OPTION was to head straight toward the tallest mountain until Quality Town came into clear sight, but that was much more difficult climbing. Together, they explored several potential OPTIONS for Catalyst to get to Quality Town.

Catalyst finally determined, "I will head straight toward the tallest mountain."

"Great," Coach said, affirming Catalyst's choice. "Then what WILL you DO next? What are your next steps?" By asking a few questions, Coach helped Catalyst determine the best choices to make progress on his journey.

Finally, Catalyst committed to the next steps he was ready to take. "I WILL DO the following," he exclaimed, beaming with confidence.

"Praise God!" exclaimed Coach. You can INVITE me to meet again when you are on the foothills of the mountain, which probably will be in four weeks. Meanwhile, when I can support you in any way, just call or message me, and I am happy to support you. God be with you on your journey to Quality Town!"

Recap

Let us recall the five elements of iGROW. Let's do their actions together. [Trainer leads by doing the actions]

INVITE [Handshake]

GOAL [Point with outstretched arms to a distant goal in front of you]

REALITY [Fingers making circles around your eyes like glasses]

OPTIONS [Place your right hand above your eyes, looking to the left, then to the right, exploring the scene]

WILL DO [Marching on the spot]

Second element GOAL

- What is the purpose of GOAL? [Answer: You set the target - what you really want and why.]
- What is the key activity of GOAL? [Answer: the coach helps the catalyst narrow down a session GOAL]
- How do you know you have fulfilled the purpose of GOAL? [Answer: The catalyst has determined an achievable, specific GOAL for the session that both the coach and the catalyst know]

Practice Part 2: [10 mins]

In the same pairs, now takes turns practicing the second element of the coaching conversation – the element GOAL.

Now the other person takes on the role of the coach and walks the other through the Insightful Questions to determine the GOAL of the coaching session. Again, work on the movement you are most familiar with. Bear in mind the limited time of 10 minutes.

Identifying a GOAL that Strengthens Motivation [5 minutes]

As coach we want to help the catalyst identify a GOAL he is strongly motivated to want to pursue. Strengthening motivation is key.

Who of you have ever felt like this in ministry, having to push others?

The art of coaching is tapping into what motivates.

Question: What if the catalysts are not motivated?

In order to persist in any long-term endeavor, we must have an intrinsic motivation. We all have an “internal” carrot.

Extrinsic motivations: my leader told me to do it, I must obey God, I must be faithful.

These are all good motivations. But they may not be strong enough motivations to persist long-term.

God invites us to serve him with joy and gladness (Psalms 100:2).

Intrinsic motivation is required to pursue a long-term vision. Intrinsic motivations include:

- Passion for the vision
- Love for the ministry activities
- Enjoyment how to do ministry (values)
- Enjoyment with whom to do ministry

The element GOAL is all about WHAT you want to see happen. This session is about looking into WHY you want to see it happen.

Increasing motivation by clarifying long term vision [8 minutes]

The following teaching section contains questions that are part of the coaching and not to be asked to the participants during the teaching session. The section deals with various forms of motivation and the questions are examples of how to tap into the catalyst's motivation.

A person's deepest motivations need to be understood in order to set outcomes that will have the best chance of success. Can you see the difference between the following two questions?

What needs to be done?

What vision do you want to see realized through your life?

The first question stays on the surface of getting the job done, predicting an outcome but missing the why. It is performance-based and may even be driven by expectations of others rather than a deep internal conviction.

The second question addresses the why and brings the motivation. Giving your life to something is not just about the outcome, but about the journey of how the outcome is reached. The following areas determine how you are motivated on that journey as you set your life towards the long-term vision.

Passion – what touches your emotions

- What causes make you feel passionate when you think of them?
- What vision stirs your emotions?
- If you had a year to live, what would be most important for you to see changed in ministry in that time?

Energy – what is exciting to do and feeds your joy

- What kind of tasks are you drawn to take on?
- What makes you feel fully alive when you are doing it? Why?
- What is one thing you have done that you couldn't wait to get to each day?

Fulfilment – what brings you most satisfaction

- What have you done in life that you'd like to do more of?
- What legacy would you like your ministry to have that has most significance for you?

Contribution – your part in changing the world for the better

- What issues do you truly care about in the world around you?
- What has led you to invest your life in movement ministry?

Regrets – anticipating what you do not want to happen motivates us

- What dream is in you that would cause the greatest regret if you got to the end of your life and didn't fulfil it?
- What will you lose if you stay safe in your comfort zone and don't pursue the passion inside you?

Key emphasis: When these themes are considered during the GOAL element, you will see the energy of the catalyst rise, their body language will be positive and the GOAL they determine will be congruent with what motivates them.

Practice: [5 minutes]

Person 2 picks a ministry goal – what do you want to see happen in the next 6 months?

Person 1 asks these questions to Person 2:

- How important is it to you to reach this goal?
- What do you feel most deeply about in this area of ministry?

- Why is that important to you?
- What else is important?

Increase motivation by clarifying values [5 minutes]

Even more significant than the vision is the values held by the catalyst. Values are HOW we do life and ministry. Values are the bedrock of all our behavior. Put simply values are what is most important to us. They inform our decisions and are the driving force behind our work and passions. They are often deeply ingrained assumptions that we don't question much or may not be very aware of. In the coaching context, when our values are explored, we increase motivation because we find meaning and significance in what we do.

The GOAL must be rooted in the values of the catalyst and the wider group. Therefore it is good to clarify what is important to the catalyst.

How do we find out what is important? While you may have much in common with the person you are coaching, remember that your own values must not drive the questions. Be curious. Ask what it means for them. The question to take away from this about values is Why is this important to you?

This is a brief selection of values. There are many more: integrity authenticity directness duty strength responsibility commitment recognition completion exploration depth achievement reflection progress security excellence belonging planning compassion honor fruit influence legacy

Especially if the catalyst appears hesitant when exploring a desired outcome, a good coach asks questions that bring out the underlying values which affect the catalyst's motivation.

For example, the catalyst may formulate as his desired GOAL: I want to do a leadership training. Asking him, why is this important to you? He may say: I love doing training. Then his value is his love for training. Or he may say: Training is essential to DMM. Then his value is proper DMM practice. Or he may say: These leaders need better equipping. Then his value is the people and their equipping. Or he may say: My leader always does training when there is an issue. Then his value is imitation of his leader. The answers reveal the underlying values of the catalyst. Thereby they predict how strong motivation will be. Motivation then leads to probability of GOAL being realized. The answers confirm if this is an essential GOAL or not. They also inform if the initial GOAL he formulated needs further modification or not.

Key emphasis: When values are considered during the GOAL element, you will see the sense of satisfaction of the catalyst rise, their confidence in the process will grow as the GOAL they determine will be congruent with what is truly important to them.

How to evaluate the goals set according to vision and values [2 mins]

When the catalyst has formulated his GOAL for himself, and you sense he is less than 100% excited about it, you may ask a couple of probing questions in order to evaluate the GOAL.

How would you or others benefit from this GOAL? This is a vision question. It's about imagining the best future for the people you serve. Concentrating on the benefits of the GOAL will increase your motivation to get there, as you identify the reasons for giving your time to this and how effectively you are serving.

How enthusiastic are you about the desired GOAL? This is a values question. Commitment and enthusiasm reveal the level of alignment with motivation and values. The coach asks questions that reveal deeper issues behind the choices. This is all leading to choices that can be firmly taken with conviction and positive enthusiasm. Any half-hearted decision is not going to be followed through. The job of the coach is to lead the catalyst to identifying the best target with the highest chance of action taken. Confidence, enthusiasm and commitment are the indicators of this.

Look out for answers from the catalyst that start with:

"I might" "Maybe I should" "I ought to" "I'd like to"

These phrases reveal hesitation which can be gently explored.

You are looking for answers that are firm and confident:

"I want to" "I will" "I can" "I am going to"

Practice: [10 minutes]

Person 1, the person who coached in the previous practice, picks a ministry goal – what do I want to see happen in the next 6 months? He formulates this ministry goal to Person 2.

Person 2 asks these questions to Person 1: (So you swap coaching roles in this practice)

- How important is it to you to reach this GOAL?

- What goes on inside of you when you think about reaching this GOAL?
- How enthusiastic are you about this GOAL?
- What could you do to increase your confidence about this GOAL?
- What would need to change to make this goal more desirable?
- How well is this value reflected in your ministry right now?

I hope this session has increased your passion and motivation for coaching as you see the value it has in the journey towards your vision!

If there is time left: questions and answers

- What questions do you have?
- What would you like to understand deeper?
- What would you like me to explain again?
- Where during the practice were you not entirely confident what to do? Where would you benefit from more explanation or more practice?

SESSION 6 – REALITY – Evaluating a Movement

A Story from Dee Emmem Land [7 mins]

The trainer invites the entire group of trainees to tell the story together again. He encourages one participant to start off and re-tell what they remember. Whenever someone gets stuck, the trainer asks: Who can continue here to tell the story? Should no one among the trainees continue, the trainer fills the gaps. Should anyone tell aspects of the story incorrectly, the trainer gently corrects.

In a land far away called Dee Emmem (DMM) there was a sojourner who was on a journey with God. His name was Catalyst. While he felt confident that his overall journey was heading in the right direction, he had a nagging concern he was missing something important that was slowing his progress.

On his path he met a fellow sojourner by the name of Coach. They shook hands, and Coach welcomed Catalyst, saying warmly "Hello! How are you?" Coach was very INVITING. After they built a comfortable rapport, Coach suggested: "Let us INVITE God and ask for direction." Together they prayed. Then Coach asked Catalyst: "What do you want to see happen? Where do you want to go?"

Catalyst responded eagerly, "My desired GOAL is that I want to journey to Quality Town."

Coach nodded. "Okay, that's very clear and doable. Let us walk together up that hill so we can view the REALITY of this terrain together."

Arriving atop the hill, Coach asked: "Let us first view where you have been coming from, and what you have been doing recently on your journey. Let us view the current REALITY of your surroundings." They discussed that for quite a while, with Coach listening and asking questions that helped Catalyst discover and take a fresh look at his journey so far.

When Coach sensed that Catalyst had gained full awareness of the current situation, he asked him: "What could you do to reach Quality Town?" Then they talked some more, reflecting on the various OPTIONS available. Catalyst could take the small trail that led directly toward Quality Town, but was rocky and perilous. Another OPTION was for him follow the stream in the valley toward Quality Town, but there was no clear trail to follow. Yet another OPTION was to head straight toward the tallest mountain until Quality Town came into clear sight, but that was much more difficult climbing. Together, they explored several potential OPTIONS for Catalyst to get to Quality Town.

Catalyst finally determined, "I will head straight toward the tallest mountain."

"Great," Coach said, affirming Catalyst's choice. "Then what WILL you DO next? What are your next steps?" By asking a few questions, Coach helped Catalyst determine the best choices to make progress on his journey.

Finally, Catalyst committed to the next steps he was ready to take. "I WILL DO the following," he exclaimed, beaming with confidence.

"Praise God!" exclaimed Coach. You can INVITE me to meet again when you are on the foothills of the mountain, which probably will be in four weeks. Meanwhile, when I can support you in any way, just call or message me, and I am happy to support you. God be with you on your journey to Quality Town!"

Recap

Let us recall the five elements of iGROW. Let's do their actions together.

[Trainer leads by doing the actions]

INVITE [Handshake]

GOAL [Point with outstretched arms to a distant goal in front of you]

REALITY [Fingers making circles around your eyes like glasses]

OPTIONS [Place your right hand above your eyes, looking to the left, then to the right, exploring the scene]

WILL DO [Marching on the spot]

Second element GOAL

- What is the purpose of GOAL? [Answer: You set the target - what you really want and why.]
- What is the key activity of GOAL? [Answer: the coach helps the catalyst narrow down a session GOAL.]
- How do you know you have fulfilled the purpose of GOAL? [Answer: The catalyst has determined an achievable, specific GOAL for the session that both the coach and the catalyst know.]

REALITY – What you are doing and what you have done [4 minutes]

1) Action – Glasses. [Trainer does and participants copy: You use your index fingers and thumbs to make a circle, move them to your eyes, as though you are wearing glasses, and look carefully.]

2) What – This element of the coaching session views what is currently happening, what needs to happen and assess strengths, and any obstacles to overcome.

3) Why – The purpose of taking a full view of your REALITY is to not miss any opportunities to reflect and then grow towards your desired GOAL. This is where the work is done to really understand where you are in relation to the desired GOAL so that you increase your awareness of what needs to be done.

4) Cupboard illustration

The purpose of the REALITY element is to understand where you currently are in relation to the desired GOAL.

My cupboard is too small for the number of items in it. I think I may have to get rid of some items that I don't use. I never have time to start work on the cupboard. I have been able to sort through my wardrobe on a previous occasion once I set my mind to do it and felt good about giving some old clothes to other people.

5) Key activity – The coach listens and asks questions to facilitate the catalyst's self-discovery.

6) How do we fulfill the purpose of the element?

The catalyst has gained more awareness of the situation

Big Picture Movement Evaluation questions [2 minutes]

All the questions you learn here are a toolkit and examples for you to draw from. It is not necessary to ask all of them one after the other, but select only those few that are most helpful to lead toward the awareness and evaluation in line with the GOAL the catalyst has identified for themselves.

Insightful questions to launch REALITY:

Where is God working most powerfully? Where do we need to join Him more in what He's doing?

Where is healthy spiritual DNA displayed and transferred most strongly that we can celebrate?

Where are deficiencies of healthy spiritual DNA that need addressing?

Where is mission drift happening that needs course-correcting?

Practice: [16 minutes]

In the same pairs, practice the third element of a coaching conversation – the element REALITY. Work on the movement you are most familiar with.

One takes on the role of the coach and walks the other through the four Big-Picture Movement Evaluation questions. Bear in mind the limited time, and make sure you cover all four questions.

After eight minutes switch roles. Now the other person takes on the role of the coach.

Evaluating the Quality Characteristics of a Movement [3 minutes]

As a coach, you can suggest to the catalyst that they evaluate the quality characteristics of the movement's spiritual DNA. These questions can be used to either support the catalyst's insight into the big picture of the movement or determine if the coaching conversation is stuck.

DMM Evaluation Questions

[Trainer: Don't read out the list question by question.]

This list of questions covers a broad range of specifics that can be considered in evaluating a movement.

PRAYER: How abundant are prayer and fasting?

COMPASSION MINISTRY: How well has the compassion ministry been received in the local community?

PERSONS OF PEACE: How well have people of peace been found and mentored?

DISCOVERY GROUPS: How well have new discovery groups been started and developed?

OBEDIENCE: How obedience-focused has the disciple-making been?

CHURCH GATHERINGS: How well does the community life model a kingdom lifestyle?

DISCIPLE REPLICATION: How well have disciples been replicated?

LEADER DEVELOPMENT: How well are indigenous leaders being developed?

CHURCH MULTIPLICATION: How well have churches been multiplied?

EVALUATION: How well are shepherds coached to evaluate their churches/movement?

Roleplay: [18 minutes]

The trainer demonstrates the DMM Evaluation Questions with one trainee. The trainer instructs the trainee (best before the session!) to pick an engagement that he is familiar with. The trainer then walks the trainee through the GOAL element.

The trainer starts with the element GOAL, saying: "Today we will evaluate the spiritual DNA of your engagement, identify what needs your attention most, and you will determine the next steps forward. Which engagement would you like to evaluate today?"

He asks the trainee the DMM Evaluation Questions relatively quickly. The purpose is for the trainee to be able to see in which DMM dimension attention is most needed.

Then the trainer walks the trainee through OPTIONS and WILL DO with these questions:

OPTIONS:

Which of these 10 elements do you sense needs attention most?

What could be done to instill this element of DMM DNA more in this engagement?
[Most of the time is spent exploring this question.]

WILL DO:

What steps will you take to instill DMM DNA more in this engagement?

After the break you will practice the DMM Evaluation Questions.

If there is time left: questions and answers

- What questions do you have?
- What would you like to understand deeper?
- What would you like me to explain again?
- Where during the practice were you not entirely confident what to do? Where would you benefit from more explanation or more practice?

SESSION 7 – Looking from different angles

Recap [5 minutes]

Let us recall the 5 elements of iGROW. Let us do their actions together.

[Trainer leads by doing the actions.]

INVITE [Handshake]

GOAL [Point with outstretched arms to a distant goal in front of you]

REALITY [Fingers making circles around your eyes like glasses]

OPTIONS [Place your right hand above your eyes, looking to the left, then to the right, exploring the scene]

WILL DO [Marching on the spot]

Third element REALITY

- What is the purpose of REALITY? [Answer: To observe what is currently happening, what needs to happen and to make an assessment]
- What is the key activity of REALITY? [Answer: The coach listens and asks questions to facilitate the catalyst's self-discovery]
- How do you know you have fulfilled the purpose of REALITY? [Answer: The catalyst has gained awareness of the current situation related to the desired GOAL]

Help the catalyst see from different angles

Illustration: [5 minutes]

[The trainer asks a catalyst to stand in a corner of the room where they can't look out the window. Then he asks him/her to describe to everyone what they see.]

Then the trainer asks the same catalyst to stand in another corner of the room where they can look out of the window. Again, he asks him/her to describe to everyone what they see.]

Then he asks the group:

What do you notice in the two different views?

What is different?

What is the reason that the same person has two different views?

It is the angle! In coaching, we help people to view the same REALITY that they have viewed before in a different way. They may believe they have a good awareness of the situation, but we invited them to view the same REALITY from a different angle.

The result: They will see more, they will see deeper, they will see more fully.

The goal: To do this until they see all aspects of the situation that are helpful to better understand what is currently happening.

Angles to gain a 360-view of a situation [5 minutes]

As coach you invite the catalyst to “stand up from where they are seated” and “move to a corner of the room” and view things from a new angle.

Reality can be viewed from a variety of angles. Here are the angles most helpful for viewing a situation. This list of questions is a toolkit for you to draw from. You only use the questions most helpful for a particular coaching session, those questions that help the catalyst gain awareness and get to the root issues of their situation.

You can introduce this by stating: Let’s look at this from a different perspective.

As you can see in your manual, there is a long list of helpful questions to encourage the catalyst to view their current reality from various angles.

Be sure you ask the first question at some point!

1. GOD – What does God’s word say, or what has God spoken in the past that might be relevant for this situation?
2. FACTORS – What are the factors that led up to this situation?
3. EXAMPLES– What have you tried already, and what difference have these attempts made?
4. FEELINGS – What are the relational dynamics at play in this situation?

Always be sure to ask the first question, to make sure God can speak into the situation and to gain His perspective on the situation. Of the other questions, you only select those that you feel are most likely to lead to helpful insights for the catalyst.

Activity: [15 minutes]

We're going to do an exercise where you think about the benefit of each question so that you can understand the reason for asking it.

In different pairs, identify the value of each angle: What is the benefit of gaining awareness from this particular angle? Answer this for each angle.

ANGLE	BENEFIT OF THE ANGLE
GOD – What has God spoken in the past that might be relevant to this situation?
FACTORS – What are the factors that led up to this situation?
EXAMPLES – What have you tried already, & what difference have these attempts made?
FEELINGS – What are the relational dynamics at play in this situation?

Practice: [20 minutes]

In pairs, continue to view the same movement that you evaluated in the previous session when you applied the DMM Evaluation Questions. Now, use the angles questions above. Try to use as many of the angles questions as possible so you have practiced them at least once.

Remember, you know that you have reached the goal of the REALITY element when the catalyst has gained awareness of the current aspects related to the desired GOAL.

If there is time left – question and answer

- What questions do you have?
- What would you like to understand deeper?
- What would you like me to explain again?
- Where during the practice were you not entirely confident what to do? Where would you benefit from more explanation or more practice?

SESSION 8 – REALITY – Practice

Recap [5 minutes]

Let us recall the five elements of iGROW. Let's do the actions together.

[Trainer leads by doing the action]

INVITE [Handshake]

GOAL [Point with outstretched arms to a distant goal in front of you]

REALITY [Fingers making circles around your eyes like glasses]

OPTIONS [Place your right hand above your eyes, looking to the left, then to the right, exploring the scene]

WILL DO [Marching on the spot]

Third element REALITY

- What is the purpose of REALITY? [Answer: To observe what is currently happening, what needs to happen and to make an assessment.]
- What is the key activity of REALITY? [Answer: The coach listens and asks questions to facilitate the catalyst's self-discovery.]
- How do you know you have fulfilled the purpose of REALITY? [Answer: The catalyst has gained awareness of the current situation related to the desired GOAL.]

Practice: [45 minutes]

In the same pairs, practice the DMM Evaluation Questions for REALITY. Work on the same movement you chose for the previous practice.

One takes on the role of the coach and walks the other through the DMM Evaluation Questions. In the next session, we will continue the practice as you swap roles.

In GOAL the coach asks: Today we will evaluate the spiritual DNA of your engagement, identify what needs your attention most, and you will determine the next steps forward. Which engagement would you like to evaluate today?

In REALITY the coach asks the above evaluation questions.

In OPTIONS the coach asks: Which of these 10 elements do you sense needs attention the most?

What could be done to instill this element of DMM DNA more in this engagement?

In WILL DO the coach asks: What steps will you take to instill this DNA more in this engagement?

After 22 minutes swap roles. Now the other person takes on the role of coach. Work on the same movement you chose for the previous practice.

If there is time left – Q&A

- What questions do you have?
- What would you like to understand deeper?
- What would you like me to explain again?
- Where during the practice were you not entirely confident what to do? Where would you benefit from more explanation or more practice?

SESSION 9 – OPTIONS – Considering different options

Recap [5 minutes]

Let us recall the five elements of iGROW. Let us do their actions together.

[Trainer leads by doing the actions]

INVITE [Handshake]

GOAL [Point with outstretched arms to a distant goal in front of you]

REALITY [Fingers making circles around your eyes like glasses]

OPTIONS [Place your right hand above your eyes, looking to the left, then to the right, exploring the scene]

WILL DO [Marching on the spot]

Third element REALITY

- What is the purpose of REALITY? [Answer: to observe what is currently happening, what needs to happen and to make an assessment]
- What is the key activity of REALITY? [Answer: the coach listens and asks questions to facilitate the catalyst's self-discovery]
- How do you know you have fulfilled the purpose of REALITY? [Answer: The catalyst has gained awareness of the current situation related to the desired GOAL]

Practice: [15 minutes]

Now take turns in the same pairs you practiced before the break.

Continue to view the same movement that you evaluated in the previous session when you applied the DMM Evaluation Questions. Now, use the angles questions above. Try to use as many of the angles questions as possible, so you have practiced them each at least once.

Remember, you know that you have reached the goal of the REALITY element when the catalyst has gained awareness of the current situation related to the desired GOAL.

A Story from Dee Emmem Land [5 minutes- Optional]

The trainer invites the entire group of trainees to tell the story together again. He encourages one participant to start off and re-tell what they remember. Whenever someone gets stuck, the trainer asks: Who can continue here to tell the story? Should no one among the trainees continue, the trainer fills the gaps. Should anyone tell aspects of the story incorrectly, the trainer gently corrects.

In a land far away called Dee Emmem (DMM) there was a sojourner who was on a journey with God. His name was Catalyst. While he felt confident that his overall journey was heading in the right direction, he had a nagging concern he was missing something important that was slowing his progress.

On his path he met a fellow sojourner by the name of Coach. They shook hands, and Coach welcomed Catalyst, saying warmly "Hello! How are you?" Coach was very INVITING. After they built a comfortable rapport, Coach suggested: "Let us INVITE God and ask for direction." Together they prayed. Then Coach asked Catalyst: "What do you want to see happen? Where do you want to go?"

Catalyst responded eagerly, "My desired GOAL is that I want to journey to Quality Town."

Coach nodded. "Okay, that's very clear and doable. Let us walk together up that hill so we can view the REALITY of this terrain together."

Arriving atop the hill, Coach asked: "Let us first view where you have been coming from, and what you have been doing recently on your journey. Let us view the current REALITY of your surroundings." They discussed that for quite a while, with Coach listening and asking questions that helped Catalyst discover and take a fresh look at his journey so far.

When Coach sensed that Catalyst had gained full awareness of the current situation, he asked him: "What could you do to reach Quality Town?" Then they talked some more, reflecting on the various OPTIONS available. Catalyst could take the small trail that led directly toward Quality Town, but was rocky and perilous. Another OPTION was for him follow the stream in the valley toward Quality Town, but there was no clear trail to follow. Yet another OPTION was to head straight toward the tallest mountain until Quality Town came into clear sight, but that was much more difficult climbing. Together, they explored several potential OPTIONS for Catalyst to get to Quality Town.

Catalyst finally determined, "I will head straight toward the tallest mountain."

"Great," Coach said, affirming Catalyst's choice. "Then what WILL you DO next? What are your next steps?" By asking a few questions, Coach helped Catalyst determine the best choices to make progress on his journey.

Finally, Catalyst committed to the next steps he was ready to take. "I WILL DO the following," he exclaimed, beaming with confidence.

"Praise God!" exclaimed Coach. You can INVITE me to meet again when you are on the foothills of the mountain, which probably will be in four weeks. Meanwhile, when I can support you in any way, just call or message me, and I am happy to support you. God be with you on your journey to Quality Town!"

OPTIONS – What you could do

Introduction [5 minutes]

1) Action – Looking around left and right. [Trainer does and participants copy. Place your right hand above your eyes, as if shielding them from the sun, looking at a distant object, looking to the left, then to the right, exploring the scene.]

2) What – This element OPTIONS explores a large range of possibilities that could launch you towards your desired GOAL as you consider what first step you may take. This is a brainstorming time.

3) Why – The better the catalyst understands the terrain of their strengths, weaknesses and opportunities, then the better they are prepared to understand the gap between the now and the not yet. In OPTIONS, the catalyst keeps an open mind to all the options available to them.

4) Cupboard illustration

The purpose of the OPTIONS element is to generate lots of ideas as to how to tackle the cupboard. I could write a list of all the items, I could watch a YouTube video on tidying cupboards, I could ask for help from a cupboard tidying expert, I could pay my children to do it, I could look through and decide what items I do not keep or I could take one item out every time I go to the cupboard and put it in a more permanent place.

5) Key activity – Both engage in reflective dialogue to explore ways forward

6) How do we fulfill the purpose of the element?

The catalyst has identified several potential ways forward.

Insightful Questions to launch OPTIONS [1 minute]

What would help you move forward?

What are ways forward toward your desirable GOAL?

What needs to be done to move this forward?

How can you bridge the gap between the present situation and the desirable future?

Help the catalyst see different options [1 minute]

In exploring ways forward, you as coach invite the catalyst to imagine the actions taken that will lead to the desired GOAL.

The future can be viewed from an endless variety of OPTIONS. This list of questions is a toolkit for you to draw from to explore potential OPTIONS. Just use the questions most helpful for a particular coaching session, those questions that help the catalyst identify the best ways forward.

You can introduce this by stating: Let's look at a variety of options.

Options to Explore Ways Forward [3 minutes]

1. GOD – What guidance does the Scripture give you or what is the Holy Spirit revealing to you about this situation?
2. DMM DNA – In what ways is this option going to contribute to reinforcing the DNA of DMM in your engagement?
3. LEGACY/IMPACT In what ways is this option going to contribute facilitating transference of that DNA/and/or making it a conducive environment for growth?
4. ADDITIONAL INFO – is there anyone/or any organization you can consult or collaborate with to tackle in this situation?

Always be sure to ask a question about what God is speaking into the situation and you gain His perspective more. Of the other questions, only select those that you feel are most likely to lead to helpful insights for the catalyst.

Activity: [10 minutes]

In pairs, different than the previous pair you were in, identify the value of each option, and answer this question for each option: What clarity does this give in identifying possible steps forward?

OPTION	BENEFIT OF THE OPTION
GOD – What guidance does the Scripture give you or what is the Holy Spirit revealing to you about this situation?
DMM DNA – In what ways is this option going to contribute to reinforcing the DNA of DMM in your engagement?
LEGACY/IMPACT In what ways is this option going to contribute facilitating transference of that DNA/and/or making it a conducive environment for growth?
ADDITIONAL INFO – is there anyone/or any organization you can consult or collaborate with to tackle in this situation?

If there is time left – questions and answers

- What questions do you have?
- What would you like to understand deeper?
- What would you like me to explain again?
- Where during the practice were you not entirely confident what to do? Where would you benefit from more explanation or more practice?

SESSION 10 – OPTIONS – Practice

Recap [5 minutes- online training with two sessions back-to-back skip this part]

Let us recall the five elements of iGROW. Let us do their actions together.

[Trainer leads by doing the actions]

INVITE [Handshake]

GOAL [Point with outstretched arms to a distant goal in front of you]

REALITY [Fingers making circles around your eyes like glasses]

OPTIONS [Place your right hand above your eyes, looking to the left, then to the right, exploring the scene]

WILL DO [Marching on the spot]

Fourth element OPTIONS

- What is the purpose of OPTIONS? [Answer: To generate a large range of possibilities that could launch you towards your desired GOAL as you consider what first step you may take.]
- What is the key activity of OPTIONS? [Answer: To engage in reflective dialogue to explore potential ways forward.]
- How do you know you have fulfilled the purpose of OPTIONS? [Answer: The catalyst has identified several potential ways forward.]

Practice: [30-35 minutes]

Practice in the same pairs as before using some of the option questions above for the same movement you worked on in the practice of REALITY, in order to explore the OPTIONS and gain a deeper understanding of their usefulness.

Remember, you will know that you have reached the goal of the OPTIONS element when the catalyst has identified several potential ways forward.

Swap roles after 15-20 minutes.

SESSION 11 – OPTIONS – Assessing available resources

Recap [5 mins]

Let us recall the five elements of iGROW. Let us do their actions together.

[Trainer leads by doing the actions]

INVITE [Handshake]

GOAL [Point with outstretched arms to a distant goal in front of you]

REALITY [Fingers making circles around your eyes like glasses]

OPTIONS [Place your right hand above your eyes, looking to the left, then to the right, exploring the scene]

WILL DO [Marching on the spot]

Fourth element OPTIONS

- What is the purpose of OPTIONS? [Answer: To generate a large range of possibilities that could launch you towards your desired GOAL as you consider what first step you may take]
- What is the key activity of OPTIONS? [Answer: Both engage in reflective dialogue to explore ways forward]
- How do you know you have fulfilled the purpose of OPTIONS? [Answer: The catalyst has identified several potential ways forward]

The catalyst assesses resources [5 minutes]

Once several ways forward have been identified, they need to be evaluated in terms of the resources available. The catalyst must assess the resources currently available. If they are not sufficient to complete the task, either the explored OPTIONS need to be reduced to the most promising few, or more resources need to be mobilized.

Resources fall into four categories:

1. Time – both yours and that of other people
2. Competencies
3. Materials
4. Money

Insightful questions to ask:

- What are the resources needed?
- How can you mobilize these resources?
- What competencies are needed to take this forward?
- Who are the people who have these competencies?
- What are the materials needed?
- What are the finances needed?
- What is the unique contribution that you can make to address this?
- How much personal capacity will you have to work on this?
- How does your family situation need to be considered?

These questions can be challenging, and it is important to remember the manageable steps required in coaching.

Practice: [30 minutes]

Continue in the same pairs, with one person serving as coach and one as catalyst. In the previous practice, you identified several potential ways forward. Now refine the options by assessing your resources.

Trade roles after 15 minutes.

A Story from Dee Emmem Land [5 minutes]

The trainer invites the entire group of trainees to tell the story together again. He encourages one participant to start off and re-tell what they remember. Whenever someone gets stuck, the trainer asks: Who can continue here to tell the story? Should no one among the trainees continue, the trainer fills the gaps. Should anyone tell aspects of the story incorrectly, the trainer gently corrects.

In a land far away called Dee Emmem (DMM) there was a sojourner who was on a journey with God. His name was Catalyst. While he felt confident that his overall journey was heading in the right direction, he had a nagging concern he was missing something important that was slowing his progress.

On his path he met a fellow sojourner by the name of Coach. They shook hands, and Coach welcomed Catalyst, saying warmly "Hello! How are you?" Coach was very INVITING. After they built a comfortable rapport, Coach suggested: "Let us INVITE God and ask for direction." Together they prayed. Then Coach asked Catalyst: "What do you want to see happen? Where do you want to go?"

Catalyst responded eagerly, "My desired GOAL is that I want to journey to Quality Town."

Coach nodded. "Okay, that's very clear and doable. Let us walk together up that hill so we can view the REALITY of this terrain together."

Arriving atop the hill, Coach asked: "Let us first view where you have been coming from, and what you have been doing recently on your journey. Let us view the current REALITY of your surroundings." They discussed that for quite a while, with Coach listening and asking questions that helped Catalyst discover and take a fresh look at his journey so far.

When Coach sensed that Catalyst had gained full awareness of the current situation, he asked him: "What could you do to reach Quality Town?" Then they talked some more, reflecting on the various OPTIONS available. Catalyst could take the small trail that led directly toward Quality Town, but was rocky and perilous. Another OPTION was for him follow the stream in the valley toward Quality Town, but there was no clear trail to follow. Yet another OPTION was to head straight toward the tallest mountain until Quality Town came into clear sight, but that was much more difficult climbing. Together, they explored several potential OPTIONS for Catalyst to get to Quality Town.

Catalyst finally determined, "I will head straight toward the tallest mountain."

"Great," Coach said, affirming Catalyst's choice. "Then what WILL you DO next? What are your next steps?" By asking a few questions, Coach helped Catalyst determine the best choices to make progress on his journey.

Finally, Catalyst committed to the next steps he was ready to take. "I WILL DO the following," he exclaimed, beaming with confidence.

"Praise God!" exclaimed Coach. You can INVITE me to meet again when you are on the foothills of the mountain, which probably will be in four weeks. Meanwhile, when I can support you in any way, just call or message me, and I am happy to support you. God be with you on your journey to Quality Town!"

If there is time left – questions and answers

- What questions do you have?
- What would you like to understand deeper?
- What would you like me to explain again?
- Where during the practice were you not entirely confident what to do? Where would you benefit from more explanation or more practice?

SESSION 12 – WILL DO – Taking action

Recap [5 minutes]

Let us recall the five elements of iGROW. Let's do their actions together.

[Trainer leads by doing the actions]

INVITE [Handshake]

GOAL [Point with outstretched arms to a distant goal in front of you]

REALITY [Fingers making circles around your eyes like glasses]

OPTIONS [Place your right hand above your eyes, looking to the left, then to the right, exploring the scene]

WILL DO [Marching on the spot]

Fourth element OPTIONS

- What is the purpose of OPTIONS? [Answer: To generate a large range of possibilities that could launch you towards your desired GOAL as you consider what first step you may take]
- What is the key activity of OPTIONS? [Answer: Both engage in reflective dialogue to explore ways forward]
- How do you know you have fulfilled the purpose of OPTIONS? [Answer: The catalyst has identified several potential ways forward]

WILL DO – What you commit to do

Introduction [5 minutes]

1) Action – Steps. [Trainer does and participants copy: You take steps on the spot where you are standing, without moving forward. You move your lower arms up and down, as though you were marching.]

2) What – The final element of the session is when the catalyst determines what action steps they will take in order to move closer to their desired GOAL. From the options developed in OPTIONS the catalyst chooses the most compelling steps forward.

3) Why – Even the smallest step increases the energy and motivation of the catalyst. Change will occur with small, manageable forward movement.

4) Cupboard illustration – The purpose of the WILL DO element is to commit to one or two of the ideas generated in the OPTIONS element and set an action plan.

So I commit to taking all the items out and putting the ones I don't need any more in one pile. That's step one. I feel motivated to do that. I can do that this Saturday after 5 p.m.

5) Key activity – Help the catalyst commit to next steps through understanding best choices.

6) How do we fulfill the purpose of the element? The catalyst has committed to specific, time-bound, manageable actions.

This is the element where OPTIONS lead to committing to action. The possibilities generated in OPTIONS are evaluated, obstacles are removed, and next steps are decided upon. Here we move from what you could do to what you WILL DO.

Part of the commitment stage is where the catalyst's motives, energy, values and likelihood of committing are revealed.

Insightful Questions to launch WILL DO [2 minutes]

How do these insights above inform your strategy for the next few months?

What are a few specific steps that you want to take to move toward your desirable GOAL?

If you were to pray for one thing, what would that be?

What are the specific steps you are committing to take until we talk next time.

Roleplay: [10 minutes]

The trainer demonstrates the WILL DO element with one trainee. The trainer instructs the trainee (best before the session!) to pick a ministry issue that they have worked on during the OPTIONS practice. The trainer walks the trainee through the WILL DO element.

3 R's to Action [4 minutes]

1) RANK the options – put them in order.

Questions to ask: Which will make the biggest difference? Which will have the biggest impact? What is the easiest to do? What seems best for you to tackle first?

2) RECORD the date by which the action will be completed.

Question to ask: By when is it realistic for you to complete your own actions steps?

3) RATE the levels of your enthusiasm, commitment and confidence

Question to ask: How confident are you that you will be able to take these steps until we talk next time?

Practice: [24 minutes]

Continue in the same pairs that you did the OPTIONS practice. Go through the 3 R's. Remember, you know that you have reached the goal of the WILL DO element when the catalyst has committed to specific, time-bound, manageable actions.

One person takes the role of the coach. After 12 minutes change roles. Now the other person takes on the role of the coach.

If there is time left – questions and answers

- What questions do you have?
- What would you like to understand deeper?
- What would you like me to explain again?
- Where during the practice were you not entirely confident what to do? Where would you benefit from more explanation or more practice?

SESSION 13 – INVITE – Reviewing previous action

Recap [5 minutes]

Let us recall the five elements of iGROW. Let us do their actions together.

[Trainer leads by doing the actions]

INVITE [Handshake]

GOAL [Point with outstretched arms to a distant goal in front of you]

REALITY [Fingers making circles around your eyes like glasses]

OPTIONS [Place your right hand above your eyes, looking to the left, then to the right, exploring the scene]

WILL DO [Marching on the spot]

Fifth element WILL DO

- What is the purpose of WILL DO? [Answer: The catalyst determines what action steps they will take in order to move closer to their desired GOAL.]
- What is the key activity of WILL DO? [Answer: Help the catalyst commit to next steps through understanding the best choices.]
- How do you know you have fulfilled the purpose of WILL DO? [Answer: The catalyst has committed to specific, time-bound, manageable actions.]

Learning through a cycle of action and review [3 minutes]

Coaching is actually a cycle of action and review that is ongoing, both during and between coaching sessions. The coach asks questions that encourage the catalyst to adopt the mind-set of constant review and action in relation to their goals.

At the start of the coaching session in the INVITE element the coach asks the catalyst about the action steps committed to in the previous session. If you charge on ahead with new goals or talking about the current situation, then you miss out on the learning opportunities of the previous actions.

Coaching is more about learning than anything else. It's about setting goals and moving forward, but that cannot be done effectively without reflecting and learning. What we are looking at next determines the quality of the learning for the catalyst through a series of evaluating questions from the coach.

There are several aspects to what you are pulling out of the catalyst's learning:

- 1) To reveal the level of commitment that they have in relation to their goals. Ask the question - What progress have you made with your action steps from last time? This is an open question that allows the catalyst to focus on whatever comes to mind.
- 2) To encourage and celebrate what has gone well. Ask the question - What did you do particularly well? This gives a chance to celebrate success, and identify positives which motivate and energize the catalyst.
- 3) Contemplate - To encourage self-reflection and what can be learned from actions taken or not taken. Ask the question - What have you learned in the process? Keep the reflecting brief at the start of a coaching conversation.

The value of progress review [4 minutes]

In the INVITE element at the beginning of our training we focused on connecting with the catalyst.

We ask these insightful questions:

- What are a couple of good things that have happened recently that you are grateful for?
- What is big in your life at the moment?
- What have you been learning recently?

Now we add a second part to the INVITE element. We also ask:

- What progress have you made since we last talked?
- What did you do particularly well?
- What have you learned in the process?

This second part you will include in the INVITE element when you have repeated coaching conversations with a catalyst over a period of time.

Look at our iGROW summary icon. It is in the form of a cycle. Coaching is a cyclical process:

Implication for you as coach – you start each session with a review of the WILL DO commitments the catalyst made at the end of the previous session.

Practice: How to evaluate previous action steps [10 minutes]

Person 1 asks these questions to Person 2:

- What progress have you made with your action steps from last time?
- What did you do particularly well?
- What have you learned in the process?

After you have gone through the questions, Person 1 formulates what they noticed about the value this review.

After that, swap roles and Person 2 asks the questions.

After you have gone through the questions, Person 2 formulates what they noticed about the value of this review

[Trainer: At the end ask a couple of people to share with the group the benefit of asking these review questions. What do you notice about the value of review?]

[Potential comments: Gives me space to process in an otherwise busy week. Helps me to understand myself. Reveals my strengths and weaknesses. Shows me a new perspective. Provides an opportunity to grow and learn.]

When action steps are not taken. [10 minutes]

As coaches, we must provide a safe space to explore why progress hasn't been made. Setting goals that are repeatedly not reached drains energy and confidence. This is to be avoided.

Reflecting on the reasons why a step has not been taken gives the catalyst the chance to change their goal when necessary to one that they have a higher chance to reach because it is more in line with their motivation.

The purpose of the questions at this stage is to:

- Identify the blockages.
- Bring out any learning.
- Take ownership of the blockage and identify what is in the catalyst's hands to change.

What are the obstacles in the way of you taking these steps?

Notice the question is most useful assuming that there are obstacles. By asking what they are, it removes the stigma from the lack of progress.

Very often the obstacles are the inner ones we create by our limiting beliefs. Questions that challenge and unlock the obstacles may reveal fear or self-protection.

There may be some external factors that have been hindering the catalyst from taking the action steps. They need to be identified.

Insightful questions to ask:

How important is it to you to complete this action step?

Open-ended: What are the factors that have kept you from taking the steps you committed to take?

Internal factors: What goes on inside of you when you think about taking the step forward? (Feelings of fear or self-protection may be revealed.)

Internal motivation: How committed were you really to this step? (Explores if there are differing values or priorities driving behavior)

Internal capability: At what point did you feel you were lacking the capability to carry your step out? (If they have high motivation, this helps them check their own level of competence.)

Self-protection: What do you gain from not taking this step? (This highlights that sometimes we have hidden reasons for not moving forward, even if on the surface we want to.)

Alternative: Is there some other action step that would more effectively move you towards your desired GOAL?

Practice: Evaluate a goal you set for yourself recently [24 minutes]

Person 1 thinks of a goal you set recently for yourself recently that you wanted to reach. You share this goal with Person 2. Be as specific as you can in describing what exactly you wanted to reach.

Then Person 2 uses some of the insightful questions to help Person 1 to evaluate. You ask only those that appear to be most helpful to evaluate.

After 12 minutes, swap roles.

Wrap-up [4 minutes]

The trainer asks a couple of people to share with the group what they have learned about removing obstacles.

If there is time left – questions and answers

- What questions do you have?
- What would you like to understand deeper?
- What would you like me to explain again?
- Where during the practice were you not entirely confident what to do? Where would you benefit from more explanation or more practice?

SESSION 14 – Practicing an iGROW Session

You have now the opportunity to practice a full coaching session. This time select a new area or issue that you have not worked on in this training before. Do this in pairs that have not practiced together before during this entire training. One is the coach, the other will be coached. You will have 40 minutes. This is almost the time of a usual coaching conversation, which is 45 to 50 minutes.

The purpose of this session is to:

- Practice your skills.
- Identify any areas challenging or feel uncertain what to do.
- Have the opportunity to raise these issues to the group and receive helpful feedback.

If there is time left – questions and answers

- Where during the practice did you feel a bit uncertain what to do? Where would you benefit from more explanation?
- What other challenges did you face during the practice? Where you would benefit from more guidance?

SESSION 15 – Practicing an iGROW Session

Now the other person in the pair has the opportunity to practice a full coaching session. Again, select a new area or issue that you have not worked on in this training. You will have 40 minutes. This is almost the time of a usual coaching conversation, which is 45 to 50 minutes.

If there is time left – questions and answers [3 minutes]

- Where during the practice did you feel a bit uncertain what to do? Where would you benefit from more explanation?
- What other challenges did you face during the practice? Where you would benefit from more guidance?

SESSION 16 – Wrap-Up

The lead trainer may determine how to best wrap up the training. The following elements are useful to include:

Motivating trainees to practice

It is important that trainees put to practice immediately what they learn. If they don't the learning principle applies: Use it or lose it.

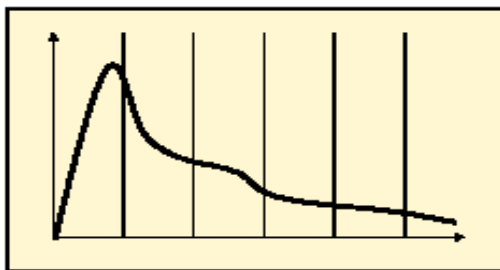

Pointing trainees to the checklists in the back of their Practitioner Manual

The trainer asks trainees to turn to the back of their Practitioner Manual. He encourages them to take these checklists to every coaching conversation in the coming month. They can refresh their memory before every coaching conversation by looking at one checklist, re-reading the Insightful Questions in that checklist, and then consciously practicing these during the coaching.

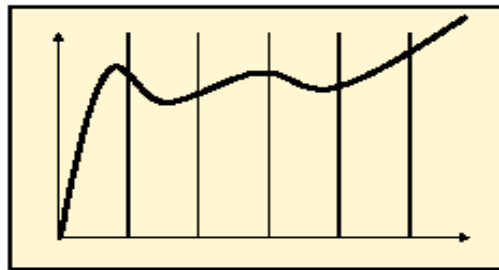

Follow-up

Follow-up is essential for lasting changes in ministry practice. The difference between trainings without and with follow-up is significant.

Learning curve for most sales programs without follow-up training.

Learning curve for Integrity Selling® with eight weeks of follow-up training.

The trainer announces that each trainee's supervisor will follow up with them on their implementation of the training.

The trainer also talks trainees through organizing follow-up through a peer group of training attendants. This includes, if feasible:

- A Signal/WhatsApp/Facebook group
- Regular practice sessions with peers of this training

Final WILL DO

The trainer facilitates a time where all trainees write down the names of people that they will practice coaching with in the following four weeks. Trainees hand their list in to the trainer who will pass them to their relevant supervisors.

Celebration

The trainer hands out preliminary certificates to each trainee.

A full certificate will be issued once a trainee has carried out at least 20 coaching sessions in the field.

The trainer blesses each trainee and thanks God for the training.